Five-year growth (2018-2022)

Tel Aviv's biggest successes are a breeding ground for new entrepreneurial talent.

Working against the odds is part of the Israeli DNA, and for entrepreneurs this has meant strategically embedding diversity and resilience into strategic growth: international scope, hyper-growth industries, and agility as a rule. The data presented in this report highlights the success of Tel Aviv tech ecosystem even, and in particular, during a year like 2022, filled with challenges and change.

My entire adult career has been within the Tel Aviv tech community - from my early days as a product manager, to co-founding a startup (that ultimately went the way of most), to investing in other women-founded startups, and now growing the activities of Tel Aviv Tech, a strategic initiative of the Mayor's Office and Tel Aviv Global dedicated to strengthening the tech industry as an engine for our city. It has been a thrill and privilege to track the development of our ecosystem from a startup incubator to a leading global tech hub in its own right, and to develop a range of services that promote innovation, entrepreneurship, and opportunity across the board, from students to founders, to multinational corporates and investors."

⁶⁶ The country's unique combination of entrepreneurial DNA, record number of repeat founders, and world-class technical talent to draw on, makes Israel resilient.

Israel has moved from being a "startup nation" to being a "scale-up nation". Eight Roads has several companies from Tel Aviv, like Appsflyer and Hibob, that are global leaders in their field and scaling to many hundreds of million in revenues and thousands of global employees. Five years ago, many of these companies would have been expected to exit via a sale to a US buyer. Now their goal is to build large multi-billion dollar publicly traded companies, which makes Israel a great place to invest.

We are confident that Tel Aviv founders and their teams can overcome short-term headwinds and use the current market environment to differentiate their companies from the rest."

We've been increasingly bullish on Tel Aviv's tech ecosystem for many years based on a combination of exceptional elements.

Mish Mashkautsan

General Partner at LocalGlobe

Many Tel Aviv founders, execs, and operators have already been on the startup journey and know what great looks like and importantly what mistakes to avoid. Add to that the solution-driven mindset that prevails, which is motivated by delivering value for customers over cool tech and means that world-leading companies in cybersecurity, fintech and enterprise software are being built here. Finally founders and operators in this ecosystem have instinctive comfort with taking risk, short and long term, which leaves companies and the ecosystem resilient in the face of unexpected challenges. This paid off hugely in 2022 when investment continued to flow to this exciting region.

LocalGlobe has been investing in Tel Aviv companies and funds for decades, building deep relationships with founders and coinvestors from seed stage and beyond. These include the likes of At-Bay and Melio - now making a global impact - to Empathy, 8fig and PayEm. Many Israeli founders see the UK as an attractive second market for them to expand into and from that perspective Phoenix Court's LocalGlobe and Latitude funds can open the door to global expansion for the most ambitious founders."

This is illustrated by the significant increase in venture capital flowing into Israel - over $20Bn in 2021 alone. Tel Aviv is the home or the source of many global leaders in the tech industry today and this has moved far beyond enterprise software and cyber security to include fintech, insurance, gaming, robotics, and healthcare. The Tel Aviv market has many well documented attributes that have driven its success, but part of the secret sauce is the highly energetic and collaborative ecosystem of repeat founders, angel investors, venture firms, and marquee tech companies that work in concert to help each other win.

We search for the most compelling founders around the globe, and an increasing share of them hail from Tel Aviv. Our investments in Rapyd, Aidoc, Superplay and Apiiro - spanning payments, healthtech, gaming and cyber - demonstrate the range and scale of opportunity there. We believe the best is yet to come."
